Office of Career & Professional Development

We teach UCSF students and postdoctoral scholars the professional skills required to navigate their careers successfully.

[1] Are you a recent UCSF graduate in the midst of job searching and wondering where to get more accurate salary data for negotiation purposes? We know that finding accurate salary data can be challenging for new grads. For this reason, our office is collecting anonymous new graduate salary information from current UCSF grads and recent alumni so that we can create a more accurate salary database based on real offers received by UCSF graduates. If you'd like to help your fellow UCSF students, graduates and alumni by being a part of this project, please consider sharing salary offer information by taking our brief, anonymous survey [2].

Non-Academic Career Counseling Appointments for PhDs will be suspended from July 1 to September 1, 2018.

In the meantime, see some helpful resources [3] or visit our calendar [4] for upcoming programming, including our Summer Biotech Series, starting in July [5]!