Practice the faculty job talk

Participants will have a chance to practice their faculty job talk, which is a requirement for all faculty candidates applying to positions involving a research component, from liberal arts colleges to Research 1 (R1) institutions. Participants who chose to do so will get a chance to present a 15-minute portion of their faculty job talk to a peer team of three or more other trainees and receive structured and specific suggestions for improvement, based on OCPD's Scientific Presentation Rubric for Academic Job talks. Participants who do not have a presentation ready but would like learn by watching and reviewing other participants' talks are welcome to attend.

- Presenters will be asked to email their final presentation 48 hours before the workshop (by Tuesday, December 12 at 12 p.m. or Sunday, January 7 at 10 a.m.), along with a sample job description to serve as an example of the position for which this talk was tailored.
- Presenters are highly encouraged to use OCPD's Scientific Presentation Rubric for Academic Job Talks to develop their talk, as this document will be used to provide feedback.
- Presentations cannot exceed 15 minutes in duration. Recommended outline:
  - 5 min introduction tailored to the type of audience you would expect to attend a job talk at your target institution
    - R1 institutions: colleagues from the same subfield;
    - non-R1s: colleagues from the same field, but different subfields, and possibly graduate and undergraduate students
  - 5 min summary of your results
  - 5 min future directions, tailored to the type of institution
    - R1s: focus on impact of proposed work and fundability
    - non-R1s: focus on feasibility with limited resources and undergraduate and Master's students
