Dear Dr. Spielberg:

I read CARE's position description for the Dentist vacancy (position #111111) with the mobile clinical team in Bolivia with great interest. As a dentist trained at UCSF, with significant surgical experience, CARE's program to provide reconstructive dental care to pediatric and adult patients greatly appeals to me professionally and personally.

In my five years of clinical practice, I have provided comprehensive dental care in an ambulatory setting for pediatric, adult, and geriatric patients. Additionally, my clinical experience encompasses several of the surgical procedures stated in the position description, including open/closed reductions of mandibular fractures in OR, periodontal surgery, open debridement, intraosseous, dental implants, third molar partial/full bony impactions, third molar extractions under IV sedation, tori reduction/tuberosity reduction/ distal wedge, intermaxillary fixation, and extraoral suturing of lacerations.

I developed these skills both through the International Dentistry Program at UCSF, and as an Associate Dental Surgeon for three years at the National Dental Hospital in Mumbai, India. The opportunity to observe and work next to highly-trained clinicians who balanced their technical skills with an artistic sensibility for aesthetics, developed my own approach and philosophy to excellent dental care.

But is it my personal experience, as a child with a cleft lip whose life was profoundly altered by the skill and care of a dentist, which inspires my application for this position. I am personally aware of the life altering experience of quality dental care, both mentally and physically. I became a dentist to help others maintain and improve their oral health, quality of life, and appearance, and this position offers the opportunity to work with others deeply committed to making a difference.

Regardless of the outcome, I wish you every success in your search – the selected candidate will clearly have a rewarding experience.

With warm regards,

Aishwarya Rai
