Bloom’s Taxonomy

- Remember
  - Recall facts and basic concepts
    - define, duplicate, list, memorize, repeat, state

- Understand
  - Explain ideas or concepts
    - classify, describe, discuss, explain, identify, locate, recognize, report, select, translate
  - Use information in new situations
    - analyze, implement, solve, use, demonstrate, interpret, operate, schedule, sketch

- Apply
  - Draw connections among ideas
    - differentiate, organize, relate, compare, contrast, distinguish, examine, experiment, question, test

- Evaluate
  - Justify a stand or decision
    - appraise, argue, defend, judge, select, support, value, critique, weigh

- Create
  - Produce new or original work
    - design, assemble, construct, conjecture, develop, formulate, author, investigate

This workshop aims to be inclusive of all voices, backgrounds and situations.

We realize not everyone can or wants to participate in group discussions.

The Academic Career Readiness Assessment: Clarifying Hiring and Training Expectations for Future Biomedical Life Sciences Faculty

Abstract

We describe here the development and validation of the Academic Career Readiness Assessment (ACRA) rubric, an instrument that was designed to provide more equity in mentoring, transparency in hiring, and accountability in training of aspiring faculty in the biomedical life sciences. We report here the results of interviews with faculty at 20 U.S. institutions that resulted in the identification of 14 qualifications and levels of achievement required for obtaining a faculty position at three groups of institutions: research intensive (R), teaching only (T), and research and teaching (RT) institutions.
The job application process in academia

1. Job search
2. Application
3. First interview via Phone/Online (20-45 minutes)
4. First visit (1-3 days)
5. Second visit (1-3 days) - sometimes
6. Job Offer & Negotiation (1 week - 2 months)
The negotiation process

What to negotiate

How to negotiate
The Offer
Possible Scenarios

You get a call on your cell phone from the Chair of one of the departments where you interviewed a month ago.

They say they are happy to let you know that they (select one):

- Would like to invite you (but no other candidate) for a second interview
- Are preparing an offer for you and need more information from you
- Are going to send you an offer, then describe it on the call and ask if it works for you
- Have an offer ready for you and need you to accept it right now

Common Questions

- What should I say on the phone?
- Should I accept the offer right away?
- Do I really need to negotiate?
- What information will I need to have ready for this call?
- What questions should I ask?
- Should I sign right away?
- What if I am still interviewing?
- What if I have another offer?
- What if I prefer another institution, but am waiting to hear from them?
- How much more money can I ask for?
- What if I can only take this job if my partner finds a job there?
- What if I am pregnant?
The “Rushed” Offer

- Have an offer ready for you and need you to accept it right now

Also called an “Explosive” offer, are:
- From institutions with lower resources
  - Little room to negotiate
- A way to pressure candidates before they get a better offer

You may be able to delay by a few days, but get ready to make a quick decision.

The “Negotiable” Offer

- Are preparing an offer for you and need more information from you
- Are going to send you an offer, describe it on the call and ask if it works for you

At this stage, it is likely that the Chair is expecting you to make changes to the offer.

This is usually how negotiations start.

You are probably not expected to accept right now.

The “Elongated” Offer

- Would like to invite you (but no other candidate) for a second interview

Unless other candidates are also invited for the second interview:
- It is very likely that this second interview is a chance for you to find if the place is right for you.

You will probably get an offer.

Get ready to be patient: you may not start the negotiation for another month.
How to prepare

During the interview:
Assess the institution, the department and the faculty to find out if they meet your decision threshold.

After the first interview:
Prepare a budget
Imagine you have a quick decision to make - run a simulation now for yourself and with your family.

You may be able to delay by a few days, but get ready to make a quick decision.

How to prepare

Prepare for the call:
Be prepared to express enthusiasm, but not make any decisions on the call.

Prepare some language to ask for the offer in an email, and a few days to study the offer before you talk again.

You are probably not expected to accept right now.

How to prepare

Before the second interview:
Prepare a list of questions you still have about the position (the facilities, the expectations, the salary calculations, the tenure requirements), that will help you make the best deal for your future position.

Get ready to be patient: you may not start the negotiation for another month.
Example of a “Negotiable” Offer Timeline

- Chair emails to express interest & ask for budget
- Chair calls to discuss the verbal offer on the phone
- Chair sends draft letter or an email with the information
- You have the first call to discuss the offer
- You have other calls to discuss the offer
- You ask for the final items discussed in writing
- You sign the offer

Day 1 Day 14 Day 15 Day 18 Days 22-28 Day 30 Day 44+

Example of a “Rushed” Offer Timeline

- Chair calls to discuss the verbal offer on the phone
- Chair sends draft letter or an email with the information
- You have the first call to discuss the offer
- You have other calls to discuss the offer
- You ask for the final items discussed in writing
- You sign the offer

Day 1 Day 1 Day 2 Days 3-5 Day 5 Day 8

What to negotiate

How to negotiate

Imagine your lab is a company
Reframing the faculty job application process
Leverage your business plan to justify your needs
Leverage your business plan to justify your needs

What level of productivity does the INSTITUTION expect from you after they invest in you?

What do YOU need to attain this level of productivity?

If you do not get some of the items on that list, how does this impact YOUR long-term productivity at this institution?
Backward Design Your Negotiation From The Goals

One large grant by Y3, another large grant by Y5
Several papers, including in high-impact journals

1 technician for the first 3 years,
Access to a large equipment in core facility 20 h/wk
1 graduate student and 1 postdoc within 2 years
A job for my spouse with equivalent salary

If you don’t get a technician, you will have no one to setup the lab and train graduate students while you write grants. This will delay your ability to get your first grant by Y3.

What you can ask for
Salary & Benefits

Offer Letter
Things to consider

- Is this a 9-month or 12-month salary?
  - 9-mo: is a summer salary offered for the first 1-3 years?
  - 12-mo: institutions rarely cover 100% of the salary.
    - What % will you need to cover after the start-up phase?
    - Is 100% covered during the start-up phase?
- Is the salary increase process in promotions (or when bringing grant money) clear and fair?
- Benefits: Do you due diligence but they are rarely negotiated.

How to ask

“I am wondering if there is any wiggle room around the salary?”

Possible reasons:

1. Cost of living in the area (loss of productivity form living an hour away from campus)
2. Loss of pay from a partner
3. Your experience is higher than an average new assistant professor
4. You are already bringing in your own grant

Clarifications:

- Would a salary increase reduce the time to tenure?
- Are salary negotiations limited by institutional policies?

How to Prepare
Questions to ask during the interview

Ask junior faculty, if they seem open to sharing information:

- What is the cost of living in the area?
- How comfortable are new faculty with their starting salaries?
- What is the average starting salary for an assistant professor in this department?
- How difficult is it for someone to cover this % of their salary with the grants they receive?
- Is there anything they wish they had known before?
What you can ask for
Startup Funds

Offer Letter
Things to consider

- Does the start-up pay for your start-up salary, graduate students?
  - Don’t compare your start-up to others without details.

- Is the start-up provided at a lump-sum or paid out in yearly installments?
  - Can you afford your start-up equipment in Y1?

- Is there an expiration date on start-up funds (3, 4, 5 years)?

- What happens if you get a grant earlier than expected (for e.g., 2 years) or later (especially in the current times)?
  - Can you keep the start-up funds?

How to Prepare
Questions to ask during the interview

Ask junior faculty, if they seem open to sharing information:

- What is the average start-up package like?
  - Start-ups vary widely, from $5K (RT) to $2 million (R) for high-cost research.

What to do now

- Equipment and supplies budgets come from the budget you submitted: Prepare a budget early on in the application process.

How to ask
The Chair will work with you to identify cost-saving solutions, like sharing equipment and using core facilities, before coming to a final budget.

- Argue for things you need based on your budget, your research statement (business plan) and your talks (pitch) which described your productivity goals.

“The Y1 budget is $100K. I need to buy a $150K equipment or won’t be able to get my lab started until a year later. Is there anything we could do to increase the Y1 installment?”

Other Clarifications:
1. Is the expiration date negotiable?
2. Can I keep start-up funds if I get a grant early?
3. Can I extend the start-up funds if I don’t get a grant in time - you are the COVID generation!
What you can ask for

Startup Funds

Offer Letter

Things to consider

- Does the start-up pay for your start-up salary, graduate students?
  - Don’t compare your start-up to others without details.

- Is the start-up provided at a lump-sum or paid out in yearly installments?
  - Can you afford your start-up equipment in Y1?

- Is there an expiration date on start-up funds (3, 4, 5 years)?

  - Start-ups vary widely, from $5K (RT) to $2 million (R) for high-cost research.

What to do now

- Equipment and supplies budgets come from the budget you submitted: Prepare a budget early on in the application process.

How to ask

Negotiate from a place of productivity:

How much productivity will you lose with this offer?

For example, with a shared equipment:

- Limited access reduces your team’s productivity
- No control over the maintenance of an equipment can create a bottleneck
- Time lost walking to another building to use equipment

“Since, I will be sharing this equipment, which I need to use frequently, and on which my results depend, I would feel more comfortable having a minimum guaranteed access (number of hours a month, week or day). If we use the machine in the Core facility, I am wondering if I could pay lower rates?”
What else you can ask for

Research Space

- Not always described in details in the letter and cannot always be included.
- Having email summaries of your phone conversations will be useful later if the negotiated space is not provided.
- When renovations are required, you should be offered a budget.
  - Discuss timeline of renovations and how they could affect your productivity.
  - You may be able to set conditions for getting alternate space and even postponing your tenure clock if renovations are late.

Teaching & Service Release

- At R institutions, you can ask to be excused from teaching and services for the first year.
- At RT institutions, such an ask can be an issue, if the primary role of faculty is to teach, but some do allow some minor release time.

Other Costs

- Moving expenses can be reimbursed with receipts, paid directly to the moving company, or paid as sum here.
  - You may be taxed.
  - There is a maximum amount stated in the letter, $5-20K.
- You can ask for professional development funds, to attend conferences, for example, if you have a small start-up budget.
Offer Letter
Things to consider

- Start dates usually align with the beginning of the semester at RT institutions.
- R institutions have variable start dates and are usually flexible in the negotiation.
- Delays in start dates for expecting parents are fairly common.
- When negotiating a start date, be aware of how it can impact your tenure clock (time to tenure).
- Here, the tenure clock has been reduced from 4 years to 3.5 years, giving the faculty 6 less months to get their position funded.

The delay you can get on the signature of the letter depends on 2 factors:

1. The type of institution. Less research-intensive inst tend to have very short turnaround time, and less flexibility with delays.
2. Whether you have another offer. More research-intensive inst may “wait” for you to consider other offers.

Make sure you let them know as soon as you hear from another institution. The deadline can also be moved multiple times during the negotiation, if it isn’t finished.

Well-being affects productivity
Salary, a position for your partner, start date, maternity leave,... Personal situations affect productivity, too.

Bring the Chair into the decision
Instead of saying “I want this” say “If I don’t get this, this is what happens. Do you have a suggestion?”

It’s often better to negotiate via phone/Skype/Zoom, in a “live” conversation

Most scientists prefer to negotiate via email, but when doing so, you will miss out on important vocal cues and body language that will help you to adapt to the situation.

You may also misinterpret people’s intentions, or read too much into it. There are ways to prepare for “live” negotiations as an introvert or conflict-averse.

Prepare.

Know what you want in advance.

Don’t decide anything.

You don’t have to make any decision on the call.

Take Pauses.

Split your call into several conversations so you have time to think about what your response will be.

EVERY institution works differently.

These calls are chances for you to learn how your future institution funds faculty, how decisions are made, how influential your Chair is.

This is your first negotiation of many more with this Chair.

Your goal with this conversation is to understand the barriers & limitations faced by the Chair when negotiating for you, and whether you are able to communicate and work together to get to a good outcome.

They should be doing most of the talking. Your role is to ask them questions so you can gather the right data to make an informed decision at the end.
How to ask: the “Negotiable” Offer Timeline

- Chair emails to express interest & ask for budget
  - Ask for enough to succeed. What are the expectations from you to get tenure or promotion?

- Chair calls to discuss the verbal offer on the phone
  - Express enthusiasm.
  - Don’t accept anything yet.
  - Ask for the offer in writing.
  - Make a list of asks and prioritize them.

- Chair sends draft letter or an email with the information
  - Express enthusiasm
  - Ask if they would be available to answer some questions, and HOW they want to discuss it (via email or phone)
  - Give overview of what you want to discuss.

- You have the first call to discuss the offer
  - Discuss first item. Explain why you need it. Ask questions. Try to understand.
  - Thanks. Indicate need for pause.
  - Indicate a timeline for follow-up.
  - Summarize action items by email.

- You have other calls to discuss the offer
  - Express enthusiasm.
  - Discuss other items.
  - Explain why you need them.
  - Repeat process pause/negotiation if needed.

- You ask for the final items discussed in writing
  - Summarize the items you agreed on in the discussion.
  - Add any asks that weren’t agreed upon.
  - Recognize and appreciate the efforts.

- You sign the offer
  - Celebrate!!!!

<td>Give each institution the chance to make a competitive offer. Tell them if the startup or salary at the other institution is more appealing. You do NOT have to provide the name of the other institutions, the offer letter, or specific details. You do NOT have to prove you have another offer, but be honest: faculty talk to each other across institutions.</td>
<td>You can wait until after you have signed an offer to turn the other ones down officially via email.</td>
<td>“Thank you for your patience in this process. I want to let you know that I have accepted the offer from XX. [Language about what you appreciated about the Chair, the department,...].” It will be MUCH easier if the Chair knows the about other offers.</td>

Negotiating for a Faculty Position
