

Welcome to the Internships and Experiential Learning application for 2022!

Thank you for your interest in Intermediate Career Exploration:
Internships and Experiential Learning (formerly known as "GSICE")!

The Internships and Experiential Learning program is designed to guide UCSF doctoral students and postdocs through identifying, securing, and succeeding in an experiential opportunity outside of academic research.

Graduate students must have passed their qualifying exams before the start of the program.

There are two components to complete your application within this survey:

1. General applicant information
2. Career Interests and motivations, including three short answer essay questions

The Internships and Experiential Learning class will prepare you to find, apply for, and succeed in an experiential learning opportunity of your choice. We will also share as many experiential learning opportunities as possible with you, during the course.

However, the program does not provide direct matching services between course participants and internship sites. Please confirm that you understand and still feel that the program is a good fit for your needs.

Yes, I understand; and this class is a good fit for my needs.

I am unsure if the class is the right fit for me (Please email mind@ucsf.edu with your questions before completing the application)

No, I no longer wish to participate in the class (Please exit the application now)

The Internships and Experiential Learning class is a live, inquiry-based learning experience. It involves active participation, including in-class activities, breakout rooms, and networking events, as well as homework between each class. Please confirm that you understand and still feel that the program is a good fit for your needs.

Yes, I understand; and this class is a good fit for my needs.
