Medical Education Experience

UCSF Pathways to Clinical and Translational Research, 0000-present

This pathway requires completion of clinical and translational research coursework, direct teaching and completion of a legacy project. The project will be the extension of year-long PACCTR fellowship project and completion of an honors thesis investigating pain management for the urban underserved at San Francisco General Hospital

Curriculum Development:

- Evaluating Web-based Modules in Pain Management Medical School Education, 0000-present.
In collaboration with Gabriel García Márquez, MD, board-certified in internal medicine, will evaluate a web-based, case-based learning modules for pain management piloted across all UC campuses.
- Curriculum Ambassadorship Program, June-August 0000.
Launched mentorship program for the Program in Medicine for the Urban Underserved (PRIME-US) program in collaboration with Diego Rivera, MD. We investigated the intricacies of successful formal and informal mentorship for effective nurturing and retention of students pursuing careers in urban underserved medicine.
